

Drug & Alcohol Use. Change and Choice

Peter Slattery

Workshop Outline:

This workshop is not about drugs, it's about people. It's about two things. Firstly it's about human behaviour and understanding why people might do what they do. Secondly, it's about looking at ways we might be helpful to a person who has got into trouble with their use of alcohol or any other drug. And it's about how to get the tricky balance right of actively promoting change in a person's life while respecting and encouraging the person's right to choose, to be in charge of their life. So...It's NOT about Information on drugs. This matters but this information is easy to access. Nor is it a first aid course. And it's not about detecting signs of drug use.

What it IS about is:

- Understanding drug use. A straightforward framework of principles which can act as a guide to working with people and drug use. This can be shared with clients and their families.
- Practical strategies that can be used with individuals, families and groups.
- The idea of 'harm minimisation' and why it is so controversial.
- How to have therapeutic conversations, whether in a group, a counselling room or over a cup of tea.
